

Distributing Cards for Parents Regarding the Harms of Trans Affirmation for Kids

Thank you for helping to share information for parents as they address the information their children are being exposed to about gender identity options and treatment for children. Together we can support parents across the United States who are concerned about their children being inappropriately influenced and confused at a young age!

Accessing and Printing Cards

The National Coalition for Health Integrity has created simple cards which you can download, print, and share. To download them go to www.askhealthyquestions.com/save-the-kids-2023.

- The cards are business-card sized. We suggest you get a batch of them printed through an affordable printer.
- sharpdots.com and vistaprint.com are examples of where you can get the flyers printed affordably.

Placing Cards

With ongoing censorship, getting a physical piece of information into someone's hands is a powerful way to share knowledge. Please be sensitive as you decide how and where to distribute these materials. Laws and regulations vary from place to place. For example, in some places it is legal to cards on car windshields in a parking lot and in some places it is not.

Note: When you distribute materials, you alone assume any liability.

However, sometimes it's better to ask forgiveness than permission. Listen to your gut about what will and won't be ok.

Always be polite and professional when distributing materials, or if asked to leave.

Suggestions of where and how you can share the cards. Please check your local laws and regulations:

- In large box stores, visit the childrens' aisles and slip cards into clothing pockets or leave on toys for parents to find.
- Post on bulletin boards. Ask permission if needed.
- Hand out or place on windshields in parking lots.
- Hand out at rallies, fairs, and public events. We suggest you say something simple like "This information is about children's health," then hand them the card or flyer and walk away. Often it works best if you do not get into a discussion about the material. They can go to the website for more information.
- Leave small stacks of cards on counters in public places such as stores, gas stations, etc. You may want to do this unobtrusively and leave only a few at a time.
- The cards can be left door-to-door in neighborhoods by sliding them into crack between the door and jamb.

Do Not Give Up

Giving out cards can sometimes seem intimidating, especially when people have negative responses. Remember that many parents are struggling with how to handle this issue, even if they don't feel comfortable speaking about it, and it is very confusing. So, for all the people who disagree with you, there are many who would like to connect with someone who is like-minded. Many parents are feeling alone and need help, information, and support. So, please do not give up. The kids are worth it.

Questions? Please contact us here:
www.askhealthyquestions.com/contact

by the National Coalition for Health Integrity